Serenade to Mr. Reeder.

Between nine and ten o'clock on Friday evening, POMP'S CORNET BAND serenaded Mr. REEDER, in front of his residence, on the occasion of his appointment as Governor of Kansas. The delightful music they discoursed drew together quite a large crowd of all parties, notwithstanding the severe shower of rain in which they stood, and at the conclusion of the music, gave three hearty cheers. Mr. REEDER appeared at his door and invited them all in. After partaking of refreshments that had been bountifully provided, on the spur of the moment, GEORGE W. YATES, Esq., addressed Mr. REEDER as follows:

Governor: This spontaneous gathering of your fellow citizens must tell you, more eloquently and touchingly than words could express, the love and esteem which the people of Eastern Kansas for you. It was but to-day that we were informed of the appointment which has been conferred upon you by the President of the United States—and with one accord, without any preconcert of action, we have met here to-night to pay to you, and to congratulate you as the first Governor of Kansas.

Few measures of public policy, perhaps, ever originated in our National Legislature, which attracted more attention, and caused more agitation in certain parts of the country, than the Bill erecting Kansas, and her sister Territory, Nebraska. And as a consequence, after the Bill had become a law, it was natural that the eyes of the Union should be anxiously directed towards Washington, to see which of the many distinguished individuals named, would be selected by the Chief Magistrate, to preside over and shape the destinies of these youthful daughters of the Republic.

How then can I express to you the satisfaction with which we, your neighbors and friends, first saw the announcement, that you had been selected by the Executive—and that to you was confided the task of organizing the Government and conducting the Administration of the most important of these Territories.

We feel proud as Easterners that the appointment has been given to our loved and faithful Borough. And we rejoice to know that we have a citizen in our midst who is eminently qualified for the office—by education, experience, amiability of manners, firmness and integrity of character, habits of industry and incorruptible integrity—and that the President might have searched the Union over in vain, perhaps, for your superior for the station.

But, sir, as there is seldom a sky without its cloud, or a pleasure without its pain—so is not even this occasion without its saddening thoughts. This appointment, which gives to the country an efficient and faithful servant, takes from us a dear and cherished townsman. We sir, hereafter, will miss you in our daily walks—the places which once knew you, at least for a time, "will know you no more." Friends will miss your cheerful smile—and the deserving your ever generous and liberal aid and support. And this community, generally, will miss you in that forum, where you have long and faithfully served them, and where your learning and eloquence, have shed lustre upon a noble profession. And, sir, I know you will also feel regret in bidding a lie to the place of your birth, and the arena of your forensic triumphs.

But these are selfish considerations, in comparison with public duty. We suppose you will not feel at liberty to decline the call that has been made upon you—and that in a short time we will witness your departure for the "Great West." Believe me, sir, that the good wishes of thousands you leave behind, will go with you—and that those who know you best will have no fears that your administration there, will be otherwise than creditable to yourself and the country.

The health of A. H. REEDER, the new Governor of Kansas.—We have every assurance in his past career that his administration of the new territory will redound to his own credit and the honor of the country.

This toast was responded to with six hearty cheers, when Mr. Reeder replied as follows: "The man who could, on the occasion of these congratulations, and among these friends, fail to have the warmest places of his heart stirred up in grateful and glowing response of feeling, at least to a demonstration of friendship so spontaneous and so flattering, must indeed be dead to every manly as well as every tender emotion.—To say, in mere hackneyed phrase, that I thank you for the honor you have conferred by this call of congratulation, by these warm cheers from warmer hearts, and by the feeling and eloquent compliment of my valued friend whose eulogy has called me out, would fall far short of the dictates of my heart that I should feel like thanking cold and commonplace, did I not recognize among this greeting crowd, men who have known me long and well, and who would never enumerate in the catalogue of my deficiencies, insensibility to friendship and kindness. Upon that knowledge I must rely for the indulgence necessary to atone for my short comings in the expressions of my thanks—for words fail me to give vent to the feelings which this occasion has evoked toward old, and tried, and faithful friends who have stood by me under all circumstances, and whom I can never forget or fail to appreciate.

The event which has brought you here, my friends, is well calculated to suggest most interesting reflections upon the wonderful progress of our country, and you will excuse me for relating an appropriate incident that occurs to my memory. In 1815, when California was almost an unknown region, and without even a Territorial government, I was a delegate in the National Convention of the political party to which I belonged, and I recollect that a member, in the course of his remarks, intimated that when that body should assemble again, a delegate would claim his seat there from the State of California. It seemed a wild and extravagant prediction, entirely out of the bounds of probability, and yet it touched a responsive chord in the sense of manifest destiny and pride of our country that dwells in the bosom of every American, and the building shook from roof to floor with the shout that hailed it. In 1852 I was again a member of the Convention, and the wild prediction was realized. I found delegates from the State of California who had come from the very shores of the Pacific ocean, casting their votes like old denizens of the place.

My friends, I hope you will heartily join me in the sentiment which I now propose: Now we find that two embryo States are about to be organized beyond the Missouri river, although within six days travel of our Atlantic coast. We pass to them over 1500 miles of a country teeming with wealth, and commerce, and business, and swarming with population whilst the very starting point of the journey was, but a century ago, itself a frontier, protected by the bullet and the rifle from the savages who prowled around it.

Some idea may be formed too of the resistless force of the populous wave which has spread like an inundation over this vast continent, from the interesting fact that in this very Territory of Kansas, to which my friend has alluded, we find, like an uprooted tree carried by the flood, the fragment of the tribe of the Delawares on whose proper native soil we now stand, and whose fathers waged deadly war upon ours here in our valleys where the scream of the locomotive seems to chase the very echoes of the Indian's yell.

But this is not a theme to be discussed in these desultory remarks. It is a subject for thoughts to fill a world, to amaze future generations, and to convert history into romance. We cannot discuss it now, and I will close by thanking you once more for this congratulatory call, and by the earnest assurance, that whatever may be the result of Senatorial action, or of my own action upon the honor which the President has conferred upon me, these expressions of confidence and approbation, which it has evoked from my fellow citizens and friends will ever be cherished in my memory as giving to the appointment its greatest value—and whether now or hereafter—in whatever circumstances I may be placed—present or absent—on the banks of the Delaware or at the base of the Rocky Mountains, my heart will always kindle with affection and regard for the kind and faithful friends who have cheered my path by their confidence and devotion.

I give you as a sentiment—MINNESOTA, KANSAS AND NEBRASKA—Destined soon to add the 32nd, 33rd, and 34th stars to our national ensign, and to prove the pathway of empire to the Pacific.

A large body of police made a descent, on Sunday night, on nine houses of ill fame in Blackberry Alley, in Philadelphia, and arrested thirty-six of the frail inmates and fifteen or twenty men. Among the latter were found one or two Western Merchants, two or three of the theatrical performers, Market street clerks, and one of Mayor Conrad's newly appointed police officers!

PROSPECTUS OF THE KANSAS HERALD.

WE shall issue on the 15th of September at Leavenworth, Kansas Territory, the Kansas Herald, a weekly Journal devoted to Miscellaneous Literature, Agriculture, general intelligence, and the maintenance of Democratic principles.

Coming on the political arena at a time when the whole country is convulsed with fierce sectional conflicts, we shall take our stand, at the start firmly against the sweeping current of public infatuation and passion, and ourselves on the platform of the strict construction, democratic principles and measures of popular supremacy.

State sovereignty, equal privileges, adherence to the Constitution of the United States, representation, frequency of elections, opposition to class legislation. It is the success of these principles and measures that has elevated our beloved country with a rapidly unparalleled in the annals of nations, to a height of prosperity and power which justly entitles her to be the wonder of the world. Though falling short in power or to assist materially in upholding the success of Democratic rule, our best efforts shall be put forth in the cause; and we are determined that want of sincerity and vigilance shall not be justly laid to our charge.

Believing that a continuance of the factional disputes that agitate our Territory are prejudicial to its peace and onward progress, we shall exert whatever influence we may possess, to local dissensions, the indulgence of which cannot fail to do harm.

The passage of the Nebraska Bill, with its various provisions has drawn the attention of the whole Union towards Kansas, with reference to the abolition of the Missouri Compromise. Opinions differ widely on the subject, and we find, equally good men both for and against the bill. We do not but the honesty of either side, nor shall we denounce either. The question is not whether it shall exist or be prohibited to be decided at the ballot-box, by the freemen of Kansas and it would be a departure from the spirit and meaning of the bill, establishing the territory for a Newspaper to attempt to do so by faction.

We belong to no clique, and shall advocate the "people's rights" and shall give opinions freely and plainly in any emergency that may arise, without dictation from any source whatever. We shall not discuss any party or individual, whether more or less, and treat both sides with fairness without hesitation. We endorse the present national administration, in the wisdom, purity, and firmness of whose government, and strict fidelity to the Constitution, we have the highest confidence.

Ours is peculiarly an agricultural State, and our encouragement will be given to all efforts to promote this branch of industry, and for the development of agricultural science, so important to the people of Kansas, as a grain growing community.

We have embarked in the enterprise of establishing a Democratic Journal, that while it shall maintain and defend the principles of our political party, in their strictness and purity, shall at the same time present to the merchant and man of business, the best and most reliable medium by which they can reach the masses of Kansas and Western Missouri, in a business point of view, and we do not but the success of our undertaking.

It is conceded by all, that Leavenworth will soon be the great commercial depot, west of St. Louis, for besides being the Capital of Kansas Territory we assume, and located at the only good landing on the Mo. River, it will continue to be the nucleus of a great part of the trade of N. Mexico, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Nebraska, western Iowa, western Missouri, and Kansas, and we, therefore, offer to the business men of St. Louis, Boston, New York, and New Orleans, facilities for advertising, with the assurance that their advertisements will be seen by thousands.

Our circulation will extend to every State in the Union; it may be found at the family fireside in Maine, and in the wilds of Nebraska; among the educated people of the South and Eastern States, and around the borders of the Western Lakes.

We shall keep up with this age of astonishing progress, and it is our purpose to issue a daily as soon as we meet with sufficient encouragement and patronage to justify the additional expense.

To the friends of Democracy particularly, and to all generally, who would encourage the diffusion of useful knowledge and correct information, we would make an appeal to aid us in extending the circulation of the Herald. It will be our highest ambition, our great object and study to give them a paper worthy of our cause and the enlightened age and nation in which our lot has been cast.

Terms.

$2.00 per annum in advance.
